PREPARE FOR BUS LICENSES

Approximately 100 School Drivers in County To Get Credentials

OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED

Test Required Includes Physical Examination Given by Physician

Arrival this morning of official notice from Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles, that all school bus drivers must have chauffeur licenses found Marion county officials in the midst of plans which will license approximately 100 school bus drivers in the county. Chauffeur licenses may be obtained at the Marion Auto club offices on East Center st., Mrs. Della V. Gallagher, secretary, said today. All school bus drivers in this county are expected to take their examinations at this office.

Bayham Sending Notices

C. B. Bayham, county superintendent of schools, today had made arrangements to get in touch with all school bus drivers in the county, and to advise each one to secure such a license from the auto club this week.

An opinion of the attorney general that a chauffeur license is a requisite of a school bus driver was given last week after the school bus-train accident near Marion.

The test consists of a physical examination, which is given by a physician, and a quiz on knowledge and operation of an automobile. Blanks are provided for physicians to fill upon examination. The entire test, with the exception of the physical examination, must be taken at the club offices.

50 Licenses Recorded

Approximately 50 persons in Marion and adjoining counties have secured chauffeur licenses from the Marion Auto club this year, according to Mrs. Gallagher. These include truck drivers, city drivers, utility truck and automobile drivers.

At noon today, no school bus drivers had been issued chauffeur licenses.

SEEK FLIERS' BODIES AFTER FINDING PLANE

Ships and Dog Sleds Carry on Search Along Barren Siberian Coastline

EIELSON CRAFT DAMAGED

Thirty Days' Food Supply Untouched in Cabin; Terrific Crash Is Seen

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 27.—Planes and dog sleds carried on their search today along the barren Siberian coastline for the bodies of Lieut. Ben Eielson, noted Arctic flier, and Earl Borsland, his mechanic.

Their wrecked cabin plane, found 10 miles inland from the Siberian coast, is all that searchers have been able to find which might indicate the fate of the two men.

Buried beneath drifts of snow, the torn fuselage and wings bore mute evidence of a terrific crash which tore the plane's power plant from its fastenings and hurled it yards away.

Workers were to dig away the snow that surrounded the plane in their search for further trace of the men.

Although the engine was dislodged, one wing was crushed and the tail torn off, the cabin was not damaged. Inside, however, pilots Joe Crosson and Harold Gilliam, who made the discovery, found their 30 days' food supply untouched.

A careful search of the plane itself and the drifts of snow that all but buried it revealed no trace of the two fliers. Some expressed the hope that the two men made their way to a remainder camp nearby, but this theory is given little credence.

Crosson and Gilliam, flying from ice-bound schooner Nanuk Saturday, sighted the plane's wreckage 30 miles southeast of their flying base and 10 miles inland from the coast.

PROHIBITION FAILURE BLAMED ON POLITICS

Republican Administration Is Attacked After Man Is Transferred

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Prohibition enforcement has failed in America because national Republican administrations have made it a "political football," Senator R. M. Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, charged on the floor of the senate today.

He was incensed by the action of the administration in transferring John P. C. Herbert, former prohibition administrator in Baltimore to the Montana-Idaho district. He charged Herbert was guilty of corruption and was kept in the prohibition service through the influence of politicians.

Senator William J. Borah, Republican of Idaho immediately repudiated newspaper statements that Herbert was his "protector." Borah said Herbert had such a record of "corruption and malfeasance" according to the department of justice investigators, that he "should be in a penitentiary."

History of Huber Co. Shows Constant Progress in Development of Latest Types of Machinery

WHEN the Huber Manufacturing Co. stopped making traction engines, A. W. Newby was thrown out of a job, as the company made him president.

This is no Cinderella story, although it needs a slight qualification to make it adhere strictly to the facts.

Twenty-six years ago Mr. Newby, now president of the company, started working in the boiler shop of the Huber plant. It was in this section of the plant that the traction engines, common a few years ago with threshing outfits and sawmills, were made. The advent of the gasoline tractor put the steam traction engine on the shelf and Mr. Newby's section of the plant was transformed to meet other needs.

In the meantime Mr. Newby was climbing the ladder toward the top of the Huber company organization. About six months ago he stepped from the top rung into the president's chair.

From Ground Up
The Huber company, one of Marion's oldest industrial establishments, apparently has a habit of picking its presidents from among those who learned the business from the ground up. Mr. Newby succeeded E. E. Barlow as president. Mr. Barlow also served a quarter of a century with the company.

London Needs Cleaning, Declares U. S. Girl Stenog

But After Cleanliness of Washington, She Says, Any Place Would Look Dirty: Finds Englishmen Don't Try To Look Like Sheiks

BY VERNITA GRONSON
(Stenographer in the U. S. State department, now in London with American delegation to live-power naval conference.)

LONDON, Jan. 27.—This thing called London needs nothing cleaning!

Along the first thing that impressed us upon our arrival here a week ago last Friday was the dirty look which all the buildings have. They look as if they had never seen a cleaning. But, I guess, it is the weather, and because they are so old, anyway.

After the cleanliness of our own Washington, almost any place would look dirty.

Somewhere, I have said that all Englishmen are good looking—more attractive than our American boys. Well, I haven't seen any of them yet.

The Englishmen I have seen start looking "saggy" from the pants up. But I guess they don't try to look like sheiks.

However, there is one thing that can be said for them. They are polite, and they treat you like a boy. Most of our boys treat you with the nonchalance that they would treat their sisters. You know, the American boy has almost completely forgotten that a girl still believes in romance and wants to be flattered about her looks.

When they do start getting friendly, most of them are so friendly that you can't get on with them. They are so friendly that they are almost unbearable.

As for the English girls, they seem to lack individuality. I have seen a number of pretty English girls, but they were not attractive. They were all alike. They were all dressed in the same way. They were all wearing the same kind of clothes. They were all wearing the same kind of hats. They were all wearing the same kind of shoes.

Why, then, did I like them? Well, I guess it was because they were so polite. They were so friendly. They were so nice. They were so good. They were so beautiful. They were so perfect. They were so everything.

So, London needs nothing cleaning! But after the cleanliness of Washington, any place would look dirty. And Englishmen don't try to look like sheiks.

FIRST REPORT MADE ON PROBE OF FORAN

One Obstacle in Path of Recommendation for Re-appointment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—A preliminary report relative to measures for the removal of Arthur Foran, chief of customs of New York, has been transmitted to President Hoover, but his recommendation as to his reappointment will not be completed for several days, it was stated today.

The only obstacle to a favorable report on Foran's record, one source says, is his alleged directorship in a number of South American steamship companies. As the treasury department has the law prohibits such participation in private business by government officials.

FORMER LOCAL MAN ONE OF CRASH VICTIMS

In Crossing Wreck at Reasville That Claims Three Lives

FUNERAL AT EDISON

Body Taken to Mother's Home; Other Relatives Marion Residents

Cecil G. Smithson, 25, of Springfield, son of Mrs. Caroline Bluehart, of Edison, and his two companions, Earl Gossett, 23, and James Gossett, 23, of Springfield, were instantly killed at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad crossing at Reasville, 10 miles west of Huntington, Sunday.

The three young men were on their way to Springfield from Leasburg, where they had taken the father of the Gossett boys, from a hospital in Athens. They were in the Smithson car, a new Chevrolet, two-door sedan.

As they neared the track, the boys heard the whistle of the train, and endeavored to stop, but the slippery condition of the highway turned the car down a spur track running parallel with the main track.

Car Tipped Over

The engine of the train caught the sedan and turned it over, throwing all three boys over an embankment. They were instantly killed. A clear view of the tracks at the point where the accident occurred is hidden by buildings. The machine was burned.

Mr. Smithson was born May 30, 1905, in Marion county, to A. L. Smithson, who is now living in Detroit, and Mrs. Caroline Bluehart, of Edison. He was married Sept. 30, 1927, in Walton, Ky., to Miss Margaret "Trimple" of Marysville. While he was working in Springfield, he made his home in Marysville.

Members of Family

Surviving him, with the mother and widow, are the following brothers and sisters: Carl Smithson, 23, of Marion; Mrs. H. W. Rodbeck, Marysville; Mrs. S. E. Patton, Cincinnati; and Miss Emma Smithson, North Prospect st.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his mother's home, in charge of the Rev. Elmer Fox, of Toledo. Burial will be made in Salem cemetery. The body was taken to the mother's home in Edison this afternoon.

Marion, Mt. Gilead Boys Named O. W. U. Leaders

Joseph Rinnert and J. Merwin Broese Designated as Outstanding Students in Article Appearing in Cincinnati Newspaper; Mentioned for Rhodes Scholarship

Joseph Rinnert, 211 Bond av., and J. Merwin Broese, of Mt. Gilead, are ranked among the outstanding students of Ohio Wesleyan university, according to the first of a series of articles on Ohio colleges, which appeared in the Cincinnati Enquirer today.

The article was published at the same time an announcement came from the university saying that Mr. Rinnert had been chosen as a member of the varsity debate team which will make the annual tour this year through Georgia, South Carolina, the District of Columbia, and Virginia. He is a junior at the university and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Rinnert's Activities
The article regarding Rinnert read as follows: "Football player, honor student, politician, debater and orator—all these things and more is Rinnert, a junior at the school. 'Joe,' as he is known on the campus, is getting ready for the semester's final examinations, training to represent Ohio Wesleyan in an intercollegiate oratorical contest, preparing for a trip through the South with the varsity debate team, and serving as president of his fraternity.

"In his spare time, Rinnert is making plans for the annual student election next spring. In which the minority party, of which he is a leader, hopes to overthrow the majority faction which has been in power for three years. Rinnert will wear the minority ticket as a candidate for the student body president, it is rumored.

"With the beginning of the second semester, Rinnert will add intramural athletics to his list of activities. He is one of the best wrestlers at Ohio Wesleyan and played last year on his fraternity's championship basketball team. Playing at tackle and guard, Rinnert won his varsity football last fall. Rinnert's grades are of Phi Beta Kappa quality and he is expected to be a candidate for a Rhodes scholarship at the close of his senior year.

Seeks New Fields
Concerning J. Merwin Broese, the Enquirer says: "Having just completed successfully the campaign to obtain $5,000 for the student chest at Ohio Wesleyan University, Broese, a scholar and secretary-treasurer of the student body, is looking for new fields to conquer. 'Big Jim' as his fellow students nickname him, is a natural leader and has a high school record of winning through high school and next June will have accomplished the same feat in acquiring his college education. It has been a real education, too, for Broese not only is a honor student, but has learned a number of business methods in earning his way that a good executive position awaits him when he graduates in June.

"Big Jim" has been in charge of college crews of magazine salesmen for the last two summers.

"Broese was the varsity quarterback who piloted the 1928 Ohio Wesleyan football team to eight straight wins, including victories over Michigan and Syracuse. A broken shoulder took him out of football in midseason last fall. He has been active on many student committees and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary senior fraternity, and of Kappa Sigma."

MORGAN SLATED FOR ELECTION TONIGHT

"Clean Bill of Health" Also May Be Given Former City Manager Hopkins

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Election of State Senator Daniel E. Morgan as city manager and the introduction of a motion to give William E. Hopkins, ousted manager, a "Clean bill of health" as the city's chief executive for the past six years, will be the two outstanding developments in city council meeting here tonight.

Morgan's election is virtually "in the bag" and his acceptance is assured. He is recommended by the support of the Republican majority of council—a total of 11 votes. Final details of Morgan's election were to be planned today in a Republican caucus. The Democrats plan also to nominate a man for the managership post, but their opposition is expected to be short-lived.

The motion to "repeal" ex-City Manager Hopkins probably will be made before the council by William J. Kennedy. It will propose that the charges against Hopkins—preferred after he was ousted from his post—were not substantiated.

In no case will the motion be a more to re-instate Hopkins or to rescind the ouster. By the parliamentary trick of immediately reconsidering the Hopkins' ouster and upholding it when it came up before council two weeks ago, any such move was definitely prevented.

A case to his parents. Hard to manage. Not inclined to submit to discipline. Some wise person suggested that his eyes might have something to do with it. An examination proved this true. His defective vision was corrected. At once he became obedient and started toward a successful manhood. Glad to consider this subject with interested parents.

Teach Safety in Schools, Plea at Conference Here

Training of Youth in Need for Careful Operation of Industry
Best Method for Eliminating Accidents in Future,
State Official Says in Address

"Safety" was the keynote of the first Marion safety conference and luncheon held Saturday in Hotel Harding. Safety in production of mechanical and electrical equipment and the education of the vocational departments of schools were stressed.

To give the idea of safety across the path of industry an important step towards reduction of the number of industrial accidents, F. M. Kearns, of Columbus, superintendent of the division of safety and hygiene of the Ohio industrial commission, told those attending the meeting in a talk on "The Safety Code and How to Apply it in Vocational Schools."

Kearns' talk was one of the outstanding features of the day's program. His talk was given in the morning session, to 65 manufacturers and vocational school men. In the afternoon meeting he showed "The Outlook," a moving picture owned by the state, which demonstrated safety features and hazards of industrial plants.

"Everyone should learn the value of training children's minds with the safety spirit so that they will carry it into their industry," Kearns said. "It is more practical to teach a younger person than an older one, because he will apply and try to use his instructions more than an older person will. Safety training should be taught throughout the school."

Following a luncheon in the main dining room, the meeting was turned over to H. W. Paine, vocational teacher, University of Toledo.

Following introduction of visitors, comments on safety education in industry were given by a number of manufacturers of the district, and Francis Bacon, of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., other speakers were F. E. Stewart, machine shop foreman of the W. A. Riddell Co., of Bucyrus, and John T. Sutton, manager of industrial relations of the Ohio Oil Co., Findlay.

Among the guests introduced at the meeting were Mayor L. Don Jones and T. E. Somanath, director of public safety.

Project Work Aids College Career; Prospect Youth Tells Experiences

Herschel Hecker, Freshman at O. S. U. Attributes Success to Club Enterprises

Project work, which has been a feature of the American Farmer Club since its inception, has been a great help to the college career of Herschel Hecker, a freshman at the Ohio State University. Hecker, who is a member of the club, has been successful in his studies and in his work on the farm. He has been able to combine his college work with his farm work, and has been able to do both well. He has been able to do this because of the project work which he has done with the club. He has been able to do this because of the project work which he has done with the club. He has been able to do this because of the project work which he has done with the club.

HERSCHEL HECKER

which the others were hired. I took up the feeling and marketing of eggs which gave me training in lines other than breeding. Regardless of how good a breeder one is, he cannot be successful if he does not know how to produce and market his product economically.

Accepts Challenge

"My crops project was one in which I studied how to raise crops for the production of livestock. From this crops enterprise I received my greatest training in actual farm experience. I say this because my father said to me, 'There are the tools and the land. Go and see what you can do.' This I took as a challenge to test my ability in actual crop production. I do not think that there ever was anything that made me work and study harder than this challenge. I would not have failed on this project for anything after my father had issued such a challenge. In my crops project I used a different method of doing it other than that which had been practiced in the community. I waited until the ground was in ideal shape for planting, then I used certified seeds, and a high grade of fertilizer. Other people had been planting at a certain time rather than wait until the ground was in condition, and had used a common grade of seed. After seeing the difference in the returns from the more scientific way of producing crops, I as well as those around me were convinced that this was the method of production to practice. This enterprise gave me much satisfaction because I felt that others, as well as I myself, had benefited by it.

Raises Swine

"Another project that I linked up with swine was the problem of housing. We at that time had no way of handling our hogs efficiently, so Dad suggested that we build a hog barn. This suggestion I worked on in the class room and at home with Dad. Together we planned the type of barn that would best suit our needs for storing feed and housing the hogs. The barn which we built cost over $1,200 exclusive of the labor, which was all furnished by my father and myself. He understood the carpenter trade and endeavored to teach me as much of it as he could. I liked the work and was naturally eager to learn as much of it as possible. Working on the barn when we were unable to be in the fields was a summer and a winter completing it. This construction enterprise helped me win the American Farmer degree as much as anything as it was in combination with my other projects. Along with these other enterprises which I kept the accounts of the farm business, these accounts enabled me to study the farm situation and to tell what phase of the business played the part of the parasite. One will be amazed at the large number of loop holes through which the profits can slip. These can be stopped only by a system of accounts and hours of serious study. The system of accounts brings to the front the realization that the old practices of farming must be replaced by the new and more scientific methods.

Writes Story for "Agricultural Student" Department Publication

Needs Leadership

"These few enterprises, I think, are enough to show some of the practical work and experience that one must have to stand in line to receive the election to the American Farmer Degree. However, if these were the only things that one was acquainted with he would not have a show for the appointment by the F.F.A. The applicant must have had experience in leadership in his home community, and among those with whom he associated and worked. He must have taken part in outside activities, other than those following the agricultural phase. By this I mean being president of athletic teams, an student council, in any type of community organization work, in plays and operettas, belonging to band or an orchestra, leader in church work, doing editorial work on school papers, and performing any kind of work where the quality of personality plays a great part. This last quality is the one that is given the greatest consideration in the choosing of the American Farmer. The organization feels that if a man is the master of his personality he is capable of doing almost any type of work and will place the organization as well as himself to the front. If a man has a strong personality he is more likely to lead than to be led, and therefore he will become the leader of his community and will aid his neighbors to achieve their goals. "I cannot overstate," United we stand, divided we fall." The F.F.A. feel that this is true and therefore choose their members who endeavor to get those who have been outstanding in organization work in their own community. "It is one of the duties of every American Farmer to develop their facilities in order that they may be of help to anyone that may be in need of their services."

7 Hours in Bed and Not 7 Minutes' Sleep!

The Toll Acidity Takes

When you go to bed dog-tired and still can't sleep and you rise in the morning more tired than when you went to bed, it's a sign you're "acid." Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastrointestinal canal which saps our strength and vitality and so taxes our nerves that we can't sleep at night or work efficiently during the day.

Magnesia Oxide, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, corrects acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxide generates nascent, or active oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastrointestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxide from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for a few days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxide to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full—A-T-R.

SOVIET BLAMES U. S.

Mexican Minister and His Staff Ask For Passports From Moscow

MOSCOW, Jan. 27—The Mexican minister here and the others of his legation asked for and received their passports today. In commenting on the diplomatic break between Mexico and the Soviets, Ivestia, the official organ of the central executive committee, caustically declared that the United States which "controls Mexico" was responsible for the break, taking this incident as a reprisal for the naughty Soviet reply to Secretary of State Stimson's note last November. At that time, Colonel Stimson called the Soviet's attention to Russia's obligations under the Kellogg pact in connection with the Sino-Russian hostilities.

PROBE WHY O'NEIL NEVER SERVED TERM

Was Sentenced to Workhouse, but Case Disappeared After 35-Day Appeal Stay

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26—Although Charles (Chuck) O'Neil, reputed "Little Hollywood" hoodlum, is dead and buried, investigation was started today to determine why he never served a two-month workhouse sentence last summer following his conviction on charges of assault. O'Neil, who was fatally wounded by an unknown assailant last week while sitting with his wife, a former Marion girl, Pauline Easton, and a friend, in the O'Neil home, was found guilty of assaulting W. A. Bradshaw at the Club Chicago last March. He was sentenced by Judge Irving Carpenter last June. Judge Carpenter granted a 35-day stay for filing of an appeal and notice was served that the bill of acceptance had been filed June 27. After that the case "disappeared," and O'Neil never served his term. Meanwhile, police today were scouring the city for clues which will lead to the capture of O'Neil's slayer, who pumped a fusillade of shots into his victim through a window of the host-ler's home.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION URGED

Norris Suggests Move, While Borah Opposes It: Would Cut Archaic Sections

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Shall a constitutional convention, similar to that special gathering in Philadelphia 1787, be held to eliminate archaic sections of the federal constitution and adapt America's bulwark of human liberty to modern conditions?

This question agitated constitutionalists at Capitol Hill today with Senator George W. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, urging such a convention and Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, opposing it. Norris declared the constitution should be modernized to include direct election of the president, elimination of " lame duck" sessions of congress and for proper handling of the child labor and inheritance tax problems. Borah opposed it because he would not trust the historic document to a revision in this era of discord.

The suggestion of a constitutional convention first came from congressional vote, who looked upon it as a means of achieving a national referendum or prohibition. A number of congressional days also favored the proposal, since they believe most states are bone dry and would reaffirm their faith in the Eighteenth amendment.

MAY INCLUDE ROAD IN HIGHWAY SYSTEM

Congressman Mouser Writes
Governor Concerning Brush
Ridge Improvement

Congressman Grant E. Mouser, of Marion, today said that he was writing to Governor Myers Cooper at the instance of Marion citizens on the failure of the state highway commission to include the Brush Ridge rd.
in the new highway system.

Mouser declared that he has asked the governor to reconsider the program in so far as the Brush Ridge rd. is concerned and inquired if the road from Marion to Nevada in Wyandot county could not also be included in the new state highway system.

The Marion Chamber of Commerce,
Dr. S. S. Barrett and Mayor Kaenzli, of Nevada, were among the number of Marion and Wyandot county citizens who appealed to Mouser to see if he could not change the governor's mind.

Daily Proverb—"We carry our neighbor's failings in sight; we throw our own over our shoulders."

Both the New York Central and the Pennsylvania railways are "all out" to inaugurate eighteen-hour service between New York and Chicago. Air competition evidently is not without its effect.

Newsweek announces that the membership of the Soviet Russian Communist party is now 1,551,600. And to think that what is comparatively a mere handful is permitted to continue its misrule over the millions of Russia!

A wire from Kansas City, Missouri, tells how a citizen recently killed there is an oil store explosion had sent $17,000 to his mother in Poland and left an estate appraised at $28,000 by living on $1.25 a month. He only thought he was.

A wire from La Porte, Indiana, says a girl out there was surprised to find thirteen hearts in her hand. Huh! That's no ground for special state pride. Many an Ohio girl has held far more hearts than that in her hand and known about it all the time.

The senators responsible for restoring hides, leather and shoes to the free list claim that they have saved the people of the United States $100,000,000 annually. The first reader to realize on the eighty-three cents saved him should report it at once. It will prove a real news story.

Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton, a Labor member of the British house of commons who is visiting America, referred to the British house of lords as "a silly institution." Apparently the British do not esteem their so-called upper house much more highly than we ever hero do our senate.

A big cigar company has promised the Federal trade commission to stop holding out that women can banish overweight and retain slender figures by smoking its product and to cease publishing testimonials which it secured in return for valuable considerations. In a word, the commission insists that truth in advertising must prevail.

Members of the Washington real estate board have decided to wage a war to put those bootlegging in the capital out of business, which is not at all hard to explain. As a rule, people who spend their money for bootleg whisky will have little left with which to buy real estate.

Remarkable Freight Service.

The Railway Age is authority for the statement that the railways of the United States came nearer perfect service in 1929 in furnishing cars to meet the needs of shippers than ever before in their history, a comparison of the records of the number of cars loaded and the number of shortages reported showing that the weekly average of cars delivered for loading where and when they were wanted was 99.99 per cent.

It has never been anticipated that perfect service in this respect the year through can ever be attained, but it is stated by the Railway Age that such a service was rendered during twelve weeks of last year, eight of them having been consecutive weeks in October, November and December, a season which rendered such service exceptionally hard, during which there was not throughout the country a single failure to furnish shippers all the cars they wanted.

The 1929 record for efficiency on the part of the railways in delivering cars for loading is the more remarkable when it is recalled that less than seven years ago shippers were furnished but 85.57 per cent. of the cars for which they asked. It may be recalled that the car shortage of 1923 was a carry-over from the year before, when there was a nation-wide strike of shop-workers.

Since 1923, when the railways fell down lamentably, as indicated heretofore, in rendering service, there has been steady improvement in the furnishing of cars save in 1928 when the percentage of orders filled fell one-hundredth of one per cent. below that of the preceding year.

When it is considered that the railways are operating 2,500,000 freight cars which must be shifted constantly to almost innumerable stations and industrial and commercial plants to meet the country's freight transportation needs, the achievement of the railways in 1929 in affording only one-hundredth of one per cent. less than perfect distribution throughout the year regardless of all traffic conditions can be held nothing less than remarkable. The American record thus having been broken, it goes almost without the saying that the achievement was the greatest of the kind in the history of railroading.

Both the roads and shippers are to be congratulated over the freight service rendered since the railways adopted their program, back in 1923, for providing adequate and improved freight transportation.

Mighty Volume of New Insurance.

The department of commerce in Washington has announced that new paid-for business, exclusive of revivals, increases and dividend additions, reported by American life insurance companies representing seventy-four per cent. of the new business production in 1929 broke all records, attaining the enormous total of $12,835,000,000, which was 5.1 per cent. more than that of 1928, and confirming in all respects the forecasts made by the forty-four member companies of the American Association of Life Insurance Presidents made last November.

The immensity of the gain in new business written by life insurance companies in the United States in comparatively recent years may be more fully appreciated when it is stated that last year's record was more than twice that of the $5,319,900,000 new business written by the same companies in 1921 and over four times the $2,959,000,000 written by them in 1915.

Last year's showing thus made by the leading American life insurance companies not only demonstrates the increased appreciation in which life insurance is held throughout the country, but also that people are utilizing it as never before to make certain provision beyond what their estates otherwise might afford for their loved ones.

It does more than that. It shows to what an extent the thrift idea has become imbedded in our national consciousness, for investment in life insurance is a manifestation of thrift, and it demonstrates economic conditions in the country without equal the world over. Such expenditure for life insurance as a new business written by these companies representing seventy-four per cent. of the new business productivity, without considering the other twenty-six per cent., would be impossible if the country's economic conditions were not good.

The men constructing the Hudson vehicular bridge at Hightstown, New York, go to work at 2 o'clock in the morning to adjust wires for the 4,000-foot cables before the temperature rises and lengthens them, as a rise of ten degrees will lengthen the strands of wire an inch. Bridge building manifestly isn't an exception to the rule. Each line of industry has problems all its own.

Frank H. Simonds says the initial sessions of the London naval conference gave the impression that the parity was going to prove a fiasco. It's possible he is right, but there have been cases where Frank has committed the folly of judging on his guesses.

Situation Becoming Complicated.

Three United States customs guards—two of them veterans in the service—have been dismissed for permitting members of the crew of the French cabin ship, De Grasse, to carry loaded bags ashore, the negligence of the three guards having been observed and reported by American detectives retained by the French line to cooperate with the treasury agents in apprehending any and all aboard the vessel guilty of rum-running. It's easy to be seen that things are going to become awfully complicated pretty soon if the practice of putting on one set of overalls to watch another is continued much further.

Duan Horbert E. Hawkes, of Columbia university, says that students entering college today are "as immature morally and as crude socially as they are undeveloped intellectually." The dean didn't say so, but he might have added that some of them leave college in much the same way.

Barley Wills, enroute home from a 6,000-mile tour in Africa for the Carnegie institution in Washington, tells of chasing lions off the roadways that his expedition might pass in its cars and relates how one of his party killed one lion in the ribs. And some people have an ambition to do to Africa and shoot such creatures that they may return home and pose as great "big game hunters."

"That shrewdport announcer, who has been using a couple of terms to which objection has been made, has promised the radio commission to be good, and his license has been extended, but a lot of people are inclined to believe that the terms criticized hardly constituted the real ground of his offending."

A number of wealthy Chicagoans have raised a pool of $200,000,000 to relieve the most pressing needs of the city government, planning to spend the money for hospitals, mothers' pensions, sanitation, fire and police protection and other like municipal necessities, and they propose that all expenditures shall be made by the pool. That's something of a tribute to Chicago's public-spirited citizens of wealth, but a blind man could distinguish the awful slap given the city administration.

We are beginning to feel sorry for the senate lobby committee. Last week, in the person of Arthur L. Fambel, secretary of the American Tariff League, it ran up against another witness who showed up not only it, but the senate as well, frankly telling the committee that the senate should be abolished and so constituted as to be as innocuous as the British house of lords.

A German has invented a new material for ship building which is so buoyant that a warship constructed from it will carry twice the weight of guns carried normally on a steel vessel. It's something of a coincidence that so many discoveries which affect warship construction have been made just at a time when five powers are in conference looking to warship reduction in the interests of peace.

London advices are to the effect that the proposal to abolish battleships has been definitely squelched at the naval conference. Honestly, it's hardly fair to Britain to make plain to her so speedily that all her propagandaizing to cut out battleships has been in vain. She was hardly given a chance to enjoy the thought that no man is able to put her clever little game over.

Bad Habits—and Nerves.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

It is well to form bad habits. To acquire bad ones, hard to get rid of, is most undesirable. Most of us have a lot of miserable habits. We admit the truth in our modern moments.

Nervous people give expression to their feelings in a number of ways. For instance, a man may tap on the floor with his foot. He keeps pattering away, hour after hour.

Your next neighbor may pound on the table with his fist to give emphasis to his thought. Another crosses one leg over the other and swings his foot up and down, keeping time with invisible music.

Perhaps you have the habit of making marvelous geometric figures as you telephone. You may make pictures on a pad as the president does. As you talk business over the telephone you may gesture with one arm.

Sometimes we are driven nearly distracted by somebody who clicks his tongue, or cracks his joints, or keeps doing some other foolish thing. Every one has some bad habit of this sort.

Among such wrong performance is the biting of the nails. It is one of the things that no one should do. It is a nervous habit. Girls have this habit more than boys. It may last into adult life.

Not only is this habit offensive in taste, but it is a violation of the rules of hygiene. The fingers should never be put to the mouth except after they have been made absolutely clean by thorough washing.

Germs of disease and dirt are carried to the mouth in biting the nails. Goodness knows enough of these miserable germs get into the system anyway. Fortunately, the body is capable of taking care of most bacteria and germs, but if we can make sure of keeping them out we should do so.

Think of the people who wear their fingers to turn a page, and to count fifty money! The hands can not possibly stay clean all the while. You should not place these soiled finger tips to your lips.

Break this habit if you have it. Teach every child to shun the bad practice of biting the nails. The finger nails, as well as the nails of the toes, should be given attention.

You are judged a great deal by the appearance you make. Well cared for finger nails, good habits of all kinds, all tell the tale of cleanliness and good health. They help your social standing. You can not quickly overcome nervous practices of long standing, but watch yourself and see what you more efficient, give you sounder physique and improve your well-being generally.

STEALING EVIDENCE.

The charges brought by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching against athletic practices at the University of Michigan were trivial compared with the charge now brought by the board of athletic control at Ann Arbor against the foundation's investigator, which for the moment may be described as that of unethical practice.

What happened, according to the board's annual report, was this: The investigator, who was given full and free access to all the board's files and records, extracted from the files a dozen letters, without the board's knowledge or permission, and took them away with him. Their absence from the files was subsequently discovered by accident. When the return of them was requested, all the board received back were photostatic copies of the letters. The originals, we take it, are still retained by the Carnegie people, as if they were to be introduced in court in a criminal action.

The board of control does not name this offense. The public will be less considerate of the feelings of gentlemen engaged in advancing the noble profession of teaching, who take what does not belong to them and refuse to return it. Any one not employed in so lofty a cause, who stole letters, would be called a thief.

The manner in which the Carnegie foundation obtained the material out of which it built its mountain of condemnation appears to have had much in common with the subterranean habits of the mole. The letters its investigator pillooned afforded but the flimsiest foundation for the structure of distortion subsequently erected upon them. Apparently he set out to prove a case and shaped facts to fit it. A prosecutor sometimes does that, a judicial officer never. Athletics in American universities may be tarred with the brush of commercialism; but they are not dishonest. Carnegie's sensational snogers have never called anything quite so raw as what is alleged in Ann Arbor against the Carnegie foundation.—Detroit Free Press.

LORRIES—FUTILE AND COSTLY.

Why do business men fail for lobbyists? The question is a timely one. Only a few months ago the amazing activities of William H. Shorser, self-appointed champion expert, were lauded. They were highly profitable to him. Then there was the revelation of vast sums spent by utility interests and another regiment of sleek and prosperous publicity and legislative agencies passed in review.

Tuesday Chairman Caraway of the senate committee investigating lobbyists offered more evidence of the high cost and extreme ineffectuality of the lobby.

"Business men might just as well go to a palm reader or a crystal seer and have the future of legislation foretold as to give their money to these publicity agents and lobbyists," says the senator. The palm reader would be much cheaper, however, for Caraway's committee reports it has expended more than $100,000 spent by these interested in the sugar tariff and the senator adds his belief that the total is more than a million.

"Simple graft" is the forthright language used by the senator to describe lobbying. Like much other graft, it fails to deliver the goods it promises. But the greater evil, Senator Caraway holds, is its undermining of the confidence of the American people in the integrity of the government. There is no doubt that some lobbyists foster the idea that legislation can be bought.

Senator Caraway is perhaps unduly alarmed on this score, but intelligent public opinion will applaud his hope that "the respectable business interests of the United States" may be brought to the conclusion that "they are throwing their money away and therefore that they refuse longer to support the lobbyists."

The report absolves President Hoover of impropriety in any attempt he may have made to bring sugar interests together on a sliding scale of duties. No one believed the president had acted improperly. But the committee does find cause to censure General Enoch H. Crowder, who "while wearing the uniform of a major general of the United States, was in the employ of the Cuban government to advocate a low sugar duty."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Eli Whitney.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.
 The story of Eli Whitney enforces the familiar lesson of experience that genius is usually naive and needs the guidance of business instinct. It is not enough to invent in order to achieve fame and wealth. It is not enough to be a genius. It is essential to know how to market one's invention effectively and to reap the golden reward of inventive genius and business acumen in happy partnership.

Eli Whitney was born on a farm in the township of Westboro, Massachusetts, December 8, 1765. The crude skill of his father as a mechanic reappeared in young Eli in a form approximating inventive genius. Handy with tools, he showed even as a lad a delicate touch in handling machines, and a skill in fabricating devices which bespoke the future inventor. Ambitious for a first-class education, he labored as a mechanic and as a school teacher in order to go through Yale university. A good mechanic was spoiled for the sake of making an indifferent college student.

After his graduation from Yale in 1793, he went south in order to secure employment as a school teacher. On board the sailing vessel which bore him to Savannah was the widow of the famous revolutionary general, Nathaniel Greene. She invited Whitney to visit her famous plantation, Mulberry Grove, Savannah, presumably to settle and open a school in the neighborhood.

There was much conversation at Mulberry Grove concerning the need for a machine that would separate cotton from its seeds. In about ten days, Whitney succeeded in making a little model, for which and the refinement of it, he was immediately offered a hundred guineas. This decided him to abandon teaching, and devote all his attention to perfecting the machine. Even after perfection, it was a simple invention—a cylinder, a grid between whose interstices the teeth pass to tear the lint from the seeds, to let the latter fall on one side of the machine and the lint on the other.

The invention was epochal in its effects, adding incalculable millions to the wealth of the world. By the old hand method, only five or six pounds at most could be cleaned a day by one person, while through its use one person could clean a thousand pounds.

Whitney and his partner, one Phineas Miller, conceived a plan for obtaining the most gigantic two-men monopoly in history. It was Miller's calculation that the cotton could well afford to pay for the use of the new invention approximately one-half the profits they derived from its use. This desire to set up a gigantic monopoly defeated the purpose. Whitney was harassed by difficulties and disappointments from the beginning. His factory burned down; unscrupulous inventors copied his model and widely sold guns in imitation of Whitney's machine. He became involved in costly litigation in order to establish and protect his patent rights.

It is estimated that Whitney received upwards of $300,000 for the use of his machine. But the cost of litigation and other expenses devoured almost all his profits. The year before Whitney's invention, the United States exported less than 150,000 pounds of cotton. Eight years later, this country exported nearly 15,000,000 pounds a year!—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Thursday, January 27, 1910. Paris was said to be facing starvation owing to the rising waters of the Seine having cut off communication with the city other than by boat, which was inadequate. It was estimated that the monetary loss would be $200,000,000.

Two hundred vessels, mostly fishing craft, were lost in a terrific storm which swept the English channel and the Irish sea.

Clark C. M. Toblin, of the bureau of vital statistics, reported that there had been 537 births and 223 deaths in the city, the preceding year.

The Star reported the birth of a daughter, the day before, to Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, of West Center street, and the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Benson, of Coughlin avenue.

Miss Grace Grey was given a dinner at Hotel Kimbark and a shower at the Domhaugh home on North State street, the night before, as the Star reported, by her fellow teachers in the Oak Street school building. Miss Grey had resigned her position.

Andrew P. Kell was installed as president of the American insurance union.

A. W. Hester purchased a business and elevator on Park boulevard of the Ireton Brothers and Elkenbury company, the price being $15,000.

Mrs. Louise Schultz was installed as chief ranger of the Companions of Foresters.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTIRE.

New York, Jan. 27.—Diary of a morning: Pepper up singing in the bath until some one rapped next door. Nor did I blame them for ever. So to walk and stopped in to see Ra. Long, Jr. who said he did not want to be an editor like his daddy because it was too "pinular and pasty."

Home to find an absorbing letter from a man who lost his fortune in New York twenty years ago and is in a South African village, 500 souls, a derelict, but happy philosopher. Then to an afternoon tea with my wife and to see some ship models, which fascinate me more than great paintings.

All evening at my typewriter, having tried to deliver a speech by morning, noon and night, at midnight had finished but four lines, abandoned it albeit am desperately in need of money. As who isn't these days? And despair awake until the coming of dawn.

Innumerable beauty and hair dressing parlors in New York are able to make week expenses with the Saturday afternoon Eddies of smartly-gowned women waiting in the entrances for their Saturday change. On Broadway it is frequently necessary to make appointments two weeks in advance of that day.

It is the day women business executives have the care lines of the week removed by facials. Perky little girls of the small hats must have a Saturday bob to enhance charms with boy friends. Old, young and middle-aged want their manicures. And—

Something about the intimacy of busy salons makes confessions easy. I saw a great spot for astrophysical tabloid tables. Ordinarily tight-lipped women suddenly to themselves gabby and revealing secrets. Yvonne, Adeles and Nina.

Hair parlors have become sieves through which high scandals of the town are sifted. A feminine familiarity that would be impossible elsewhere is bred instantly. Abo the whirl of drying machines, even we have hands waiting in ante-rooms are able now at ten to hear sally rumors.

After all, men are greedier for gossip than women. We may greet it with a slight shoulder shrug and a disarming little smile but secretly we "eat it up." More reputations are torn to tatters by men in speakeasie backrooms than over teacups in the drawing-rooms.

I know one of those loose-wristed butterfly flossies who invariably has a full morsel of scandal at his tongue's end, and professes to a certain abhorrence publicly but secretly an always tickled pink when prances in.

The old time barbershop was where older generation "dished the dirt." It was fountain of idle tattle and groundless rumormongering. The Eddies and Cosses, who adorned and white tiled glitter have the chair of a hospital receiving ward. The walls no longer adorned with prints of Maud S, John L. The pinkish glamour of the Polo Gazette has given way to the glazed opulence of periodicals featuring riding-to-hounds a gossip of Newport. Gone are rows of individual mugs with painted lodge emblems, other insignia of one's place in the business world. The Eddies and Cosses, who have shaved or hair cuts could plink or turn the banjo or guitar, are missing. The clergy Rubelstein story about the "Pulman" and the dear old lady" has given way to a polite reference to the stock market or other fall of the French cabinet. And those of us who cup a wily ear for a bit gossip, it is a pity.

So far—and it is none of my business, I'm pouring again—all I have seen hoses do in tea-rooms is to run off with the men.

And while I'm so super critical here's telegram from way out yonder in Des Moines with a sting: "We are pretty fed up read about your spats. Have you no other accomplishment?"

I do a fairly good string trick.—Copyright 1930, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.
 Uncle Sam's Surgeon General Cummings says that at the present rate of progress it will take fifty-one years before the two communities of this country will be reaching what he considers necessary health.

Last year the public health service reported that 12,000,000 people in seven states. Sky scraping office buildings, airplanes, and other spectacular evidences of modern day civilization do not tell a complete story. There is plenty of the most important kind of community work yet to be done. A United States, advanced as it is, has a long way to go.

Professor Cunningham, of Northwestern university, is supposed to coach women's boxing teams. He called for candidates for the teams the other day and expected a run. Speech, he thought, is what women have in of. But not a candidate responded. X that may not be serious, but it is something to think about.

T. P. O'Connor, one of the oldest and most distinguished members of the house of commons, died not long ago. T. P. was in forefront of almost every movement that affected Ireland. He was a great speaker, a great English statesman, ranked as a great man. The writer of a column remembers the impression made T. P. nearly twenty years ago. We do that he left only $1,500—and twenty boxes which he bequeathed to various friends. T. P. was too busy making history to get money.

It is always encouraging to hear that a little man has been given money to do a big job. That's what we need to know—why. Columbia university announces that $1,500—or $55,000 a year for three years—will be spent in an investigation to determine causes teeth to decay. The cause of decay teeth is not always the presence of a toothbrush. There are people who never brush their teeth, but that fact is, who do not and will not decay. Just as there are people who have never had a shampoo, who never will have, whose hair is permanent.

Then we learn the way of things we're able to do something about some of the things.

MT. GILEAD CAGERS DEFEAT VISITORS

Cardington Teams Lose Both Games in Tilts at Morrow County Seat

MT. GILEAD, Jan. 27.—Before a throng which filled the Mt. Gilead high school gym to capacity, Coach Deodora's cage performers sprang a surprise by sailing away to a 11 to 1 lead over Cardington in the first quarter of their game Saturday night. The final score was Mt. Gilead 31, Cardington 17.

Hanna at right forward was Mt. Gilead's basket ball scoring, capturing five field goals and five free throws for a total of 15 points. White, at guard, displayed an excellent brand of basketball both defensively and offensively. He scored two field goals, Howard at center scored four field goals and two free throws for a total of 10 points.

For Cardington only the two forwards, J. Click and D. Click, were able to sink field goals.

The game was not rough but the small score resulted in much personal contact with the result that Referee Francis Bacon was forced to call 20 fouls on Mt. Gilead and 12 on Cardington.

The Mt. Gilead girls pulled themselves out of a hole to win 21 to 17 after trailing 7 to 11 at the half. The score was tied 13 all at the end of the third quarter.

Rathburn, who did not play the entire game, was high scorer with 12 points and Matthews a close second with 9. Stevens scored the remaining three points.

Sellers, Cardington center, led her team mates scoring 14 out of the 17 points. In addition to the lineup given below Fate and Whitney substituted for Mt. Gilead and Farrington and Beiler for Cardington. The summaries:

Son of British Premier Prepares to Stay in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—This week and weekly frontier town of Chicago, which according to the London press is "universally regarded as a warm and merciful, and as the home of mass corruption and organized crime," can be such a tough spot after all.

Allister Macdonald, son of the premier of Great Britain, was still here today, two days after his contemplated departure and Allister said he would remain here three days longer.

"I do not feel I have seen the city by half. The more I see of it the more I want to see," he said.

"I am not interested in the crimes in Chicago. I wish to study the architecture of the buildings."

Gets State Association Post Filled by Father for 20 Years

Edward N. Sloan, son of the late E. A. Sloan, has been appointed secretary of the Ohio Association of Cemetery Superintendents and Officials to fill out the unexpired term of his father, who died recently.

The appointment was made Saturday by R. B. Andrews, of Cleveland, president of the association, while he was a visitor in Marion. Mr. Andrews is superintendent of Riverside cemetery at Cleveland.

Appointment of the new state association secretary was made as a special expression of recognition of the long service of his father. E. A. Sloan had been an official of the association continuously during the last 20 years, part of the time as secretary and part as treasurer.

Edward N. Sloan graduated from Harding high school in 1928 and until recently was enrolled as a student at Ohio Northern university, Ada.

MAN CONFESSES TO OKLAHOMA MURDER

Says Wife of Slain Man Gave Poison to His Wife

DURANT, Okla., Jan. 27.—The state case in the murder of Mrs. Sarah Eastep and Will Hughes, farmer living near Durant, was solved today when A. J. Eastep, neighbor of Hughes, confessed that he helped Hughes to death.

Mrs. H. Hughes, widow of the slain man, previously signed a confession in which she alleged that she and Eastep planned to marry after her husband's death.

Until today, Eastep steadfastly denied implication in the murder. He summoned Sheriff Ruel Taylor, this morning and dictated a confession.

"I ask the mercy of the court," Eastep said after signing his confession.

Eastep maintained in his confession that Mrs. Hughes, not himself, administered the poison that killed Eastep's wife.

Sheriff Due Tonight with Peckskill, N. Y., Prisoner

Marvellous Jenkins, Oakland Heights resident, who is wanted here for passing worthless checks, is expected to be returned to the city tonight in the custody of Sheriff John J. Francis.

Jenkins gave himself up to police in Peckskill, N. Y., nearly two weeks ago. Apparently homeless from being so far away from home, Jenkins asked Peckskill police to lock him up and notify police here. When the word came through to local police that Jenkins was being held in the New York city no complaints had been lodged against him. As a result the Peckskill police were advised that Jenkins was not wanted here.

Jenkins, however, apparently liked the Peckskill jail and refused to leave when his release was ordered. In the morning, Sheriff Francis learned through local police that Jenkins still was holding Jenkins. The sheriff knew that the man was wanted here. Extraordinary proceedings were started and Jenkins is expected back here tonight.

MAIL ORDER STOCK SLUMPS ON MARKET

Drop in Montgomery Ward Earnings Leads to Heavy Selling

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Heavy selling in Montgomery Ward broke out in the stock market today following the issuance of the official earnings statement for 1935, showing net earnings of only $2.00 a share on the common stock.

Due to the "retroactive profit revision" in the mail order branch of the business, last year's net profits totaled only $11,594,000, against $19,571,000 for 1934. Large expenditures were made and obligations incurred for expansion and the opening up of new stores, according to President George B. Everett.

Montgomery Ward was one of the steepest in the 1935-36 bull market. The stock soared from below 50 to 430, and after the sale of new stock at $25, established a high price of 150 1/2 for the stock in its new form. During the late 1929 crash, Montgomery Ward dropped to 80, where it held its ground for a few weeks prior to its next nosedive to below 50.

The next selling were carried to 34 1/2, from which level it rallied to 68. The next selling pressure today, it declined again to 10 1/2.

SURRENDERS

Guardians To Be Quizzed in Slaying of Deserter

DETROIT, Jan. 27.—Serg. James L. Pearson, 25, who shot and killed Stanley Prusnowski, 18-year-old national guardsman, while attempting to arrest him as a deserter, surrendered to civil authorities today. He was to be quizzed as a preliminary to a thorough civil investigation.

Accompanied by Col. John G. Leroy of Lansing, adjutant general of the National Guard of Michigan, and his company commander, Capt. Joel E. Dubs, Sergeant Pearson appeared at the prosecutor's office.

Dubs said it was not the policy of the Michigan National Guard to arm its non-commissioned officers when they were on duty seeking deserters.

Cleveland Step Nearer New Lake Front Stadium

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Construction of a $2,500,000 lake front stadium here took another step forward toward realization today when a court of three appellate judges filed a ruling here today affirming the decision of Cuyahoga county common pleas court in denying an injunction against its erection.

The petition seeking the injunction was filed in the name of Andrew A. Meyer, a taxpayer, who sought the restraining order on the grounds that the city had no clear title to lake front land; that the expenditure of $2,500,000 for its construction would be illegal and exorbitant and that it would be primarily for the use of the Cleveland Indians' baseball team.
